From my desk...

Recently I read a book that was given to me by a wonderful staff member in my building. The book, "Lead Beyond Your Title: Creating Change in School from Any Role", the author, Nili Bartley does an amazing job with sharing insight on how ANYONE can be a leader no matter their role is or no matter how experienced they are. I am a big believer on the power of great leadership and how one person can change the world. I have read many books on leadership from authors such as: Todd Whitaker, John Maxwell and Shelley Burgess... to name a few. In EVERY book that I have read the author shares the same message as Bartley does. I know I am "considered" a leader because my business card says "principal", but in all reality being a principal doesn't make you a leader just like wearing a pair of Air Jordan's doesn't make you an NBA All Star. What makes you a leader is the things that you do to impact your community around you and those that you work, live, and interact with. So I ask you today... Look beyond your title! Look beyond what you or other think is your role! Look around and see where you can take your talents, skills, intelligence, determination, and love and take that step and become a leader. The world needs great leaders, heck, this school is always in need of more great leaders, so get off the bench and get in the game and become the Leadership All Star I know you can be!

Highlight of my week!

On Wednesday I was visiting classrooms and I went into an ELA LRC class to spend some time interacting and observing the teaching and the learning. At one point the students were asked to do a quick write on their Chrome Book and after a few minutes the teacher began to ask for volunteers. The outgoing students of course jumped at the chance and after calling on a few of those eager students, the teacher asked a student seemed very reserved if he would like to share. The student said that he didn't, but then his peers began to encourage him to share. The student (who usually does not speak) read his quick write to the class. After he finished reading, there was silence for a split second and then the class started to clap for him. It gave me goosebumps! I love how we have a culture where students care for each other and encourage each other to be the best they can be! Awesome stuff!!

Have a great week,
